THE LATE W. T. HILLIARD ESQ.

Remarks Upon the Resolutions to His Memory.

The resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Wm T Hilliard Esq, published in the WHIG of Thursday, were presented by Hon Abram Sanborn who proceeded to address the Court as follows

REMARKS OF HON A SANBORN

May it please the Court—My professional and personal relations with Bro Hilliard for almost fifty years have been so pleasant that I cannot permit this mournful occasion to pass without rendering my tribute to his memory. He was fully educated in Bowdoin College and had graduated his preliminary study of the law to qualify him to practice in the courts of this State. He opened an office in Oldtown in this county in 1832 and continued in the discharge of his professional duties and with a good will and esteem of the community till 1841. At this time he had won a good general reputation and knowledge of law and faithfulness to his clients. And I need not for the truth be appalled to the very important and responsible office of Clerk of Courts for this county.

He discharged the duties of this position faithfully and well during a most critical twelve successive years. In all this time either the county nor any man suffered from or loss from official ignorance neglect or wrong doing on his part. Upon his retirement he resumed the practice of his profession and performed it with skill and ability to the end of his life.

Brother Hilliard was a student in general literature. His reading was select and extensive. He read well and thoughtfully. His opinions were duly considered and his judgments sound. He was refined in his tastes and manners and careful of the feelings of all with whom he had intercourse socially or in business. I cannot recollect a solitary instance of his being betrayed by sudden excitement or momentary forgetfulness into a rash, angry or even unkind expression. He was ever social, genial courteous and respectful. In one word he was a gentleman. In all these high qualities he was a model man and much by which he sought and secured the confidence of his fellow citizens. His life in the profession which he so adorned and illustrated so long is an example well to follow. In this way he, though dead, will live after him and cheer and help on his footprints on the sands of time will direct and guide to paths of pleasantness and peace. I move that these resolutions be entered on the records of the Court.

REMARKS OF G. WHITE, ESQ.

I second the resolutions and add

May it please the Court—Should I allow this occasion to go by without an expression of my feelings of regard and affection for our friend whose death so suddenly and with so little warning, has taken from our midst, I should feel that I had been derelict in the discharge of a duty which an acquaintance and friendship of ten years have imposed. I cannot neglect this duty. I must respect it. To yield to the memory, I owe it to my own respect for the sacred offices of friendship. I need not speak of him professionally, others have preceded me in that direction, nor shall I speak of the history or events of his life. But I cannot forbear to offer the humble tribute of my testimony to the many excellent social and companionable qualities of our deceased brother.

My first acquaintance with him recalls back only to about the time of my admission to the bar. I then soon discovered the same pleasant, genial gentlemanly qualities which were afterwards characterized his disposition and conduct towards me and I discovered that the social habits were not simulated or unnatural to him, but were the genuine outgrowth and expression of the heart and nature God had given him.

For six or seven years past we had occupied office up the same entrance and upon the same flat. Our habits had been during, that time almost daily to drop in upon each other back and forth and upon such occasions of course to talk upon any subject that suggested itself to our minds. It is true he was greatly my senior in years, and that this of ordinarily renders any thing like cordial sympathy or close intimacy out of the question. It was not so in our case. He was so kindly, so generous, so frank and youthful in all his thoughts, ideas and sympathies, he could so cordially and heartily enter into the spirit and enjoyment of all social and intellectual pleasures, he was full of anecdote and reminiscence he could tell and enjoy a good story with such relish and then he could laugh such a hearty, merry laughter (I can almost hear the music of it still ringing in my ears) that one could scarcely realize that he was not a young but an old man.

He was intelligent and appreciative upon almost any subject. He was a great reader of books,—of history and miscellaneous. It may be, but wide in range and variety, covering both light and solid literature. Few men, who do not make a study and profession of letters, are possessed of so thorough and intimate an acquaintance with English history and literature. He was particularly fond of English history, and was familiar with all of the best authors on that subject. He was also a great admirer of our own historians, Irving and Prescott. Bancroft, Motley and Parkman. He had read and re read them all, particularly the works of Prescott, Motley and Parkman. I do not mean by the mention of these authors to indicate even an outline of his reading on these subjects but merely to show that his taste was rather for historical than other literature, although he had read pretty much everything in fiction English, French and American.

By nature he was mild, gentle and affable. His manners were pleasing, easy and without restraint. As a neighbor he was generous, considerate and obliging, as a friend, self sacrificing, thoughtful and full of the warmest sympathy. Conversationally he was sensible, entertaining and entirely free from arrogance or deceit. I cannot so well speak of his domestic relations, not having known his family, or the different members of it so intimately as himself. I feel myself justified, however, in saying, that from what I know of his nature, and from his frequent expressions of solicitude and affection for his home and family, I believe him to have been a kind, indulgent and devoted husband and father. No man could have a kinder heart, or a more generous and ready sympathy. He had many friends, and few, if any, enemies.

He lived to a ripe old age, and died in the bosom of his family, surrounded by his nearest and dearest friends. As the days and years roll by those of us who survive him will continue to meet here in this place and elsewhere, but we shall miss his cheerful, smiling face and the kindly tones of his voice. Him we shall meet no more. He has penetrated the veil and mystery which divide the living from the dead,—the life we are living from the life we are to live. The problem he so often expressed himself desirous to solve he has at last succeeded in solving.

God's finger touched him, and he slept. His last short breath between the cradle and the grave, and death is no respecter of the times when, or the places where, his coming will be most suitable. Man proposes, but God disposes. We know not what a day may bring forth or when the portals of the grave are to be opened. I cannot know how long my own life may be extended, what the future may have in store for me of good or evil but this I can say, and with the most confident assurance that how long soever I may live, or however or wherever I may be placed or conditioned, I can never forget but at all always hold in the most grateful recollection, the many acts of kindness and the oft spoken words of encouragement and sympathy which have come from the hands and lips of William Tyng Hilliard.

REMARKS OF JUDGE LETHAS

Judge John A Peters responded

He Memoirs of the Bar.—When I came to this Bar in 1844 Bro Hilliard was the Clerk of the Courts for this county. He was an agreeable and courtly gentleman in all the relations of that office, nor has any successor excelled him in the performance of its duties.

I have known him well ever since. We all know him well. No man of the Bar was ever more agreeable to meet. Never did he fail to extend his friendly greeting. There never was anything uncheerful about him. Whether stepping among the flowers of the flowers of life, his outward demeanor was the same. His face wore smiles not frowns. He must have usually looked upon the best side of every event a habit which Dr Samuel Johnson said was worth more than a thousand pounds a year. The burdens of life are light if cheerfully borne.

His actions spoke words and steps readily told his character. His mental character was excellent. His moral and social qualities were exceedingly attractive. His nature was kindly, friendly, sympathizing, equitable, honest and true. Generosity was in his heart and head as well as in his hand. That great quality so ornamental and balance wheel to all his faculties. So was that kindred trait charity conspicuous in him. It is a kind of good deed to say well of us the past. It was the rarest thing with our brother say ill of anybody. His smile, his laugh, his cordial manner will greet us no more. He will be sadly missed and most agreeably remembered. There is more daylight in our pathway by having had him for so great a portion of our span of life a traveler with us.

I intended to say but little on the occasion. The Chief Justice will further respond to your resolutions. But I could not refrain from accepting this sad opportunity of casting a simple sprig, or a single flower upon the grave of my friend.

REMARKS OF CHIEF JUSTICE APPLETON

Chief Justice John A Appleton said

The resolutions of the bar so eminently just and appropriate and the eloquent remarks of my old and lifelong friend are but the expression of the sentiments of the community of which our departed brother was for so many years an honored member.

I have long known Mr Hilliard and have been intimately acquainted with him almost from the commencement of his professional life to the day when he was unexpectedly taken from our midst. Receiving the advantages of a collegiate education he commenced the study of the law and after the usual term was admitted to the bar. Shortly after his admission he removed to this county of which he has ever since been a resident. As a lawyer well read in his profession ever attentive to the interests of his clients faithful to protecting their rights judicious and prudent in the management of their cases, he acquired and retained their confidence and that of the public. For years he held the important position of clerk of this court with honor to himself and to the entire satisfaction of the public. You all remember his gentlemanly bearing and with what prompt ness and fidelity and integrity he discharged the duties of that responsible office. As a citizen respected and beloved in the relations of social life for his genial nature and urbane manners, as a friend ever true and faithful—he has almost with our warning passed away. We shall no more for ever, see his graceful figure or his elastic step or hear his cheerful voice or his kindly greeting. His sudden death is another illustration of the uncertain tenure of life—of the vanity of all earthly hope and aspirations, so beautifully expressed in the ancient records of a wonderful race. Life is a passing shadow, say the scriptures. Like a shadow of a tree, the shadow which prevails for a time? No even as the shadow of a bird in its flight, it passeth from one bright and neither bird nor shadow remains.

But it is in the endeared circle of home in which his affections so fondly centered that his loss will be most tenderly mourned.

"Close sympathy which shall soothe and heal,
And feelings delicately fine,
To sooth a heart that's sorely tried,
To heal the wounds, to calm the mind,
And make the mourner smile."

There are, alas! those who will never more see his cheerful face, nor hear his kind voice, nor feel the pressure of his friendly hand, nor receive the benefit of his counsel and advice. To such his memory will be a sacred legacy. Their grief is too deep for utterance. Time alone can assuage the bitterness of their grief.

To our departed friend has come the last inevitable hour which awaits us all, and when that hour shall come may it find us as ready to meet our destiny, full of hope and trust in the future, sorrowing only for the tears we shall leave behind.

Ordered That the resolutions of the bar be entered on record and in token of respect that the Court stand adjourned.

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin

The Journal says Mr Hobbs of Norway, father of Mr Charles H Hobbs of Lewiston, a popular overseer in the Bates mills, was thrown from his carriage, Tuesday afternoon. The accident was caused by an interference with the thills of another wagon that stood at the entrance to the stable. Mr. Hobb's head was cut and his shoulder was dislocated. A surgeon immediately took Mr Hobbs in charge. His injuries, although severe are not regarded serious.

There were unloaded at the lower Maine Central station, in Lewiston, Tuesday, for the Union Water Power Co, some of the biggest timbers ever brought into that city. They were hard pine and came from Georgia. Part of them were fifteen inches square and part ten inches, and each was seventy feet long. They were ordered last May and just arrived. It was impossible to sooner find a schooner which could take them. They will be stretched across the canal and will be used for taking the water measurements. Considerable engineering was required to unload and team the long sticks.

Aroostook.

A son of Mr. James Lean, of Silver Ridge Point, had both bones of one of his legs broken, just below the knee, last Friday afternoon, while trying to extricate a horse that was mired. The horse made a struggle to get up but fell back on the boy, breaking his leg. The surgeon pronounces it a bad break.

Cumberland.

A barkentine of about 600 tons named "Dida G Clark" was launched from the yard of P. C. Merryman of Harpswell on Thursday last. She is owned by the builder and others of Harpswell, J. S. Winslow of Portland and Capt. C. C Clark who will command her.

Franklin.

Superintendent Tucker has shown his appreciation of James H. Emery, of Jay, by promoting him to the additional charge of the stone masonry on the entire road.

Kennebec

The Journal says that an organized gang of thieves seems to be operating in the suburbs of Augusta. On Friday night they visited the stable of Y Kimball in the North Parish, and took a horse collar and a new harness. The same night they called on Horace Doe near by, and relieved him of a harness. Next they paid their regards to Melville Cross, but he heard them trying to unlock one of his doors and drove them away. They stole a harness from William Libby in the edge of Vassalboro, and also took some robes from the widow Snell's, just above. No clue to the miscreants.

Solomon Chase, a hard working industrious and upright citizen of North Paris was lately taken to the insane asylum at Augusta. Mr Chase by energy and prudence had made for himself and family a pleasant home, but considering his advanced years and the severity of his mental trouble it is doubtful if he recovers to enjoy it. This is the third person that has been taken to this institution from that vicinity within a short time.

Lincoln

Mrs Martin Jones of East Boothbay met with a sad accident Saturday morning. While cleaning house, standing in a chair she knocked down a loaded gun, discharging one barrel to strike away the chair in a shocking manner from her right arm and shattering one of the bones. Saturday evening physicians amputated the arm below the elbow. She is doing as well as could be expected.

Oxford

The Oxford Democrat says that several thousand dollars worth of potatoes have been raised and sold, while somewhat more did strict alone at North Lyndon, beside there has been an abundant crop of oats and hay which now find a good market.

Somerset

A correspondent writes to the Locals on Journal. Quite an excitement was occasioned in Pittsfield Tuesday evening by the woodwork about the furnace in Wm Dobson's house catching fire. It was caused either by defective masonry in building the furnace or by its being too near the woodwork. The fire was soon extinguished but Pittsfield No 7 came near having a chance to show her colors. One interesting fact in connection with our fire fighting facilities—the reservoir at the railroad track with a capacity of 11 hogsheads was filled from the lower hydrant on Maine street in nineteen minutes two hose playing from the hydrant at once. Any building on Main street can be doomed in the twinkling of an eye in fact any building in the thickly settled portion.

Washington

The Republican says that 600 of its publisher C Q Tarbox went into the woods guessing 400 lost was out all night and required a large party to hunt him up.

York

The apple evaporating works of Messrs Judson Andrews & Manson, half a mile from Cape Neddick, closed for the season Friday. More than 500 bushels of apples have been put through the various processes and are now in store for the market which fruit is likely promises to be an active one during the coming winter.

IS GOVERNOR PLAISTED GOING TO ABOLISH THE SUPREME COURT?

It surely ought to cause even thoughtless people to consider how far we are drifting upon that course of lawlessness begun by the Garcelon conspirators and continued only too eagerly by Governor Plaisted, when the party organ of the latter, published at his own home, insolently justifies his shameful manifestation of contempt for the State Judiciary, and declares that he very properly refuses to even appear to su... ...of the formally expressed opinion of the Supreme Court, "by presiding at the meeting when it was to be read, ... so walked out of the chamber."

Here we have a Governor who has first attempted to override and abolish the authority of the Executive Council now expressing contempt and defiance of the Supreme Court. Where this is to end may well be asked, and if the evil disposed in ...parts of the State were to follow the law defying and scandalous example of the present occupant of the Governorship there would be anarchy in Maine within thirty days

Every sober minded citizen will take notice that this unparalleled and shameful attempt of Governor Plaisted to set aside and trample down every Constitutional provision every law and every branch of the Government that interferes with his own stubborn will, has been based upon no pretence of sustaining any principle in behalf of the public welfare, but that the disgraceful warfare waged by him since the day he was inaugurated upon everybody and everything that stood in his way, has been solely inspired and governed by his determination to turn Republicans out of office to make place for his political friends

Before he was warm in his seat he precipitated a contest with the Executive Council by insisting upon thrusting upon them his own minor son as Messenger in place of the worthy soldier who had so efficiently performed the duties, and from that time to this the present Governor of Maine has been heard from only by his persistent quibbling over the matter of filling the minor State offices He has never even made a pretence of consulting any public interest, or taken the trouble to make believe that he wanted to remove or appoint a man for the benefit of the public service—he has simply sought to put Republicans out and Fusionists in to gratify his personal and partisan spites and interests

In his attempt to usurp dictatorial power for this sole purpose of pettifogging with offices, he has insulted, abused and claimed the prerogative to disperse and disband the Executive Council, and now that the concurrent authority of that body is sustained by the unanimous judgment of the Judicial Branch of the Government this same remarkable Governor, on the same single issue of filling all the State offices at his own pleasure, still further disgraces himself and the office he holds by a public exhibition of defiance and contempt for the authoritative declaration of the law of the land

We wonder if our bouffe Cæsar having in his own mind abolished all authority of the Executive Council, now proposes to abolish the Supreme Court and the Legislature The people of Maine are pretty thoroughly tired of this performance

Queer Coincidence!!

It is quite a singular coincidence that the whole of the legal arguments against the opinion of the Court that were put forward in the Commercial last evening as its original editorial utterances appeared simultaneously ... in a special despatch from Augusta in Thursday afternoon's Portland Advertiser, which has constantly served as a conduit for Plaisted's deliverances The identity is absolute and complete so that instead of Mr Bass it was ... that spread himself in the Commercial's columns

TOO UTTERLY UTTER

The Bangor Commercial informs its readers that its time and space are too much engrossed by grave and serious matters to permit the waste of both by publishing any portion of so frivolous and unimportant a thing as the official deliverance of the Supreme Court of the State upon a question affecting the relative powers and duties of the two branches of the Executive Government That great journal remarks that it printed a squib a few days ago alluding to the forthcoming of such a document and that such casual mention is all that should be expected of a newspaper absorbed in more momentous things

So our powerful and enterprising contemporary declines to print so much as a line or a word of the opinion of the Court, but proceeds with a delightful confidence in its own judicial profundity to render judgment in its editorial columns exactly contrary to the findings of the eight feeble and inexperienced jurists who occupy our Supreme Bench

If there could be a spectacle more utterly utter than the most ludicrous conception of Nast or Keppler, it is certainly furnished by the attempt of the ponderous Mr Bass to so spread himself as to sit down upon the whole Supreme Court

CHILDISH FOLLY

Identical despatches from Augusta to the Portland Argus and Boston Globe manifestly dictated by Governor Plaisted state that he denies the right of the Council to obtain the opinion of the Court and that he has requested the Attorney General to serve a writ of quo warranto to bring the question of Reporter Spaulding's tenure to a regular trial before the Court. As the Court have rendered a unanimous opinion on the question, the childishness of this attempt to prolong the controversy is apparent But it by no means follows that the Attorney General will deem it his duty to resort to an extraordinary process to ascertain by what warrant the Reporter of Decisions assumes to hold that office, when no one but Governor Plaisted makes any question of his lawful incumbency and the Supreme Court have just affirmed it unanimously. The Governor is unable to give anybody else even a pretence of being the incumbent of that office to furnish excuse for such person to sue out a writ of quo warranto, and it is simply trifling with the time of the Court and with the public patience for him to resort to "dilatory motions" after he has been overwhelmingly defeated

A NEW PHASE OF THE INSANITY BUSINESS

The Tribune remarks that the Guiteau trial has produced some legal anomalies, but none more amusing perhaps than the appearance of the prisoner yesterday as a witness to identify letters tending to prove his own insanity If Guiteau is so insane that he did not know it was wicked to commit a murder, he can hardly have a sane notion of the nature of an oath If he is capable of giving rational testimony, the average citizen will wonder how it can be possible that he is not rational enough to know that shooting a man down in cold blood was not an inspiration of the Deity It is important to remember, in considering this phase of the case, that the claim is not one of temporary insanity, which might leave Guiteau free to commit murders in July and conduct his own defence and be sworn on his own behalf in November, but one of hereditary and permanent insanity If he should escape conviction on this ground after having acted as his own counsel and own witness, we might, perhaps, see a new form of criminal practice, the old and exhausted plea of temporary insanity would be dropped, and in its place we should have hereditary insanity, with the privilege reserved to the prisoner of speaking and testifying in his own behalf

PRANG'S CHRISTMAS CARDS

Nothing has exerted a more powerful influence to popularize the best forms of art than the beautiful publications of Messrs L Prang & Co, of Boston, who have brought the art of printing in colors by chromo lithography to the very highest perfection And of the elegant work given to the public by this house they have given special attention to the production of Christmas and New Year's cards of the most delicate beauty and original designs In the production of these cards it has been the earnest endeavor of Messrs L Prang & Co to steadily improve their style and artistic character, and thereby elevate if possible, the innate love for the truly beautiful in art in the hundreds of thousands of homes into which these messengers of good will find their way

We have received from the publishers a number of samples of the rich and rare cards which they are sending out this year including the reproductions of the designs that received the prizes in the competition last February at the American Art Gallery, New York. These include the $1,000 prize card by Elihu Vedder, with its Sibyl like figure, massive decorative border and neutral subdued coloring the prize card by Dora Wheeler, with its angels proclaiming with trumpets the birth of the Savior that of C C Coleman, with its oriental richness and suggestion of music poetry and flowers, and that of Rosina Emmett delineating a happy mother and her child, with border of cherubs heads and mistletoe In addition to these are a great variety of other beautiful designs some of the cards bordered with silk fringe some opening like a book others in the form of fans and all appropriate as charming souvenirs of the festival season The more delicate cards are all fitted in pasteboard protectors and enveloped ready to be sent anywhere by mail. The fashion of sending these pleasant tokens of love and friendship, which was unknown in this country a few years ago has assumed such dimensions, and has proved so popular, that it has ceased to be a fashion only, and has become a firmly established custom of the American people

DEMOCRATIC GREENBACKERS

THE GENEROUS BOURBON WOLVES WHO WANT TO ACT AS GREENBACK SHEPHERDS

[From Wednesday's Lewiston Journal]

The Greenback symposium was continued in undertones in room No 0 at the DeWitt, until a late hour Tuesday evening Two or three Lewiston men approached the door on tip-toe and were admitted, after a cautious knock A nervous man came into the office after the Kennebec train arrived scanned the hotel register eagerly and asked for Judge Frye The sitting was recruited to a good room full Among the conferees who joined the State Committee was Dr Sprague, of Milo the new professor in the medical school

A Journal interviewer had the fortune to meet Mr F W Hill, of Exeter, one of the Greenback State Committee Mr Hill now has the felicity of being near the throne in the capacity of father in law to Governor Plaisted Mr Hill is a portly and jovial gentleman

"In fair round belly, with good capon lined"

who greets you with twinkling grey eyes and a face wrinkled into immeasurable smiles After some talk of a general political nature Mr Hill said the State Committee hadn't been together for some time and had met to discuss the general state of the party there being no special issue at hand except the defection of the straight element which came in for a share of the committee's consideration

"Will there be two Greenback State conventions next summer?" asked the interviewer

"No, I don't believe there'll be but one"

"Who will call that?"

"Why! the State Committee appointed by the Portland convention of 100 members Thirty five of the members bolted, and held another convention The convention in Lewiston which nominated an independent committee was the work of those bolters We don't recognize the committee They have a very small following in the party They didn't get a delegate from our county

"You think they will back down when convention time comes?"

"Yes, I think they will I don't believe they'll call a convention Several of the committee have resigned, and others are on the point of doing so

"Is the Greenback party holding its own in the State?"

"I think it is fully as strong as it has been I don't think we're in a majority, but I think the combined opposition has more votes than the Republicans have

"You think there will be a fusion between the Greenbackers and Democrats on a gubernatorial ticket next fall?"

"I think the two parties are friendly to it."

"And Plaisted will be the nominee?

"It looks so

"Will the Governor call an extra session of the Legislature this winter?

(With assurance) "That hasn't been decided yet"

"He has consulted his political friends on the question I suppose?

"Yes But it hasn't been decided yet Several very important matters are being considered

"What will be Governor Plaisted's course in regard to appointment of county officers whose terms expire in January?"

"He will appoint Greenbackers to fill their places"

"Have you seen Judge Gilbert recently?

"No! Judge Gilbert is a nice kind of a man but his political judgment isn't so good as that of some of us who have been through more fights"

"It is understood that you were active in securing Mr Reed's withdrawal last September, Mr Hill?

"I don't know as I had much to do with it. I was down here once We sometimes get credit for what don't belong to us, you know" [Laughter]

"How do you account for the result after Reed's withdrawal?

"Our folks didn't come out and vote Any news from Augusta?"

"No, good night."

John Welch, a convict in the New York penitentiary in Syracuse, was so exasperated at having a concealed knife taken from him that he thrust his right arm into the cogs of a powerful machine in one of the workrooms, and had it crushed into a shapeless mass.

WHAT IS SAID ABOUT THE CABINET

A Washington despatch to the Tribune says

There is now excellent reason to believe that only two Cabinet changes will be made in December—namely In the Secretaryship of State and in the Attorney Generalship Mr Frelinghuysen is undoubtedly to be nominated for the first named position, but it is believed that no selection has been made for the other. It is expected that Mr James will remain for the present at the head of the Post Office Department, probably not severing his connection until the end of the present fiscal year Mr Lincoln is almost certain to be retained in his present position

Secretary Hunt will retire, but the President is in no haste to make a selection for his position, and it is likely that the change will not be made until some other place can be found for him If it be true that Judge Davis of the Court of Claims has consented to accept the position of Assistant Secretary of State, Mr Hunt will without doubt be his successor on the bench of the Court of Claims Secretary Kirkwood will probably retire during the winter, the Iowa delegation and the people of the State with one voice are desirous that he should remain in the Cabinet but he expresses no anxiety on the subject himself, and has not made and will not make any effort to ascertain the President's intentions nor will he express his own wishes in the matter It is now said by close friends of President Arthur that Judge Folger will remain at the head of the Treasury Department during the term of this Administration, and that Mr Conkling will not accept a Cabinet position

PERSONAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

The pension rolls for December demand $7 000 000.

Mrs Morton the wife of the American Minister at Paris, is indisposed and will pass December at Cannes

Dr John Bacon many years a professor of chemistry at Harvard College died on Monday night in Boston

Miss Daisy Hampton daughter of the Senator, will make her first appearance in Washington society this winter

Secretary Folger, it is reported will become the tenant of Admiral Wells' handsome house on Connecticut avenue Washington

The Fort Wayne (Ind) Gazette predicts that Senator Voorhees will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1884

A claim of $10 000 presented against the estate of a deceased Cincinnati millionaire has been compromised after legal proceedings had commenced for $600

The oldest man in public life in the United States is Dr Uriel Ferrell, member elect of the Virginia Legislature from Orange who is in his ninetieth year

The committee that was appointed in Baltimore recently to solicit subscriptions to a memorial fund for the family of the late Sidney Lanier has secured about $3 000

It is reported that Mustafa Pasha presented Mille Grevy at her marriage with a pearl ornament of the value of 70 000 francs, which had belonged to the Bey of Tunis

As Mr Gladstone drove through Chester the other day, a group of Irish cattle dealers cheered him enthusiastically, one of them inquiring Is that the man who gave us the Land Bill?

The Concord (N H) Monitor says that of the $7 000,000 required for the payment of pensions in September a little more than one twelfth was assigned to the agency in that city

Ex Senator Conkling and wife and their daughter Mrs Oakley and husband have secured apartments at 17 West Forty second street, New York for the winter and have leased their residence at Utica

Signor Salvini has become a father in law His eldest daughter has just been married at Florence to a clever young lawyer Signor Gabrielli Salvini is going to London next spring to act with an English company

NEW PUBLICATIONS

CHARLES LUBRECHT'S PICTORIAL COUNTY RAILROAD AND DISTANCE MAP of the United States with pictorial map of the World on the reverse side is just issued of mammoth size 6x70 inches showing the whole Country from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean all the railroads, counties, cities towns, etc It is engraved by an entirely new process and is also embellished with several fine engravings and plans of cities On the back of the above map is printed a pictorial map of the world (on Mercator's Projection) and the Census of 1870 and 1880 It shows the numerous steamship routes, the Atlantic and other submarine cables late discoveries in Africa, the flags of the different Nations of the globe comparative height of the most noted waterfalls in the World and as a great curiosity have been added two maps of the Hemispheres which were engraved in 1492—nearly 400 years ago—in Nuremberg Mr Alfred H Spooner is agent for this section of the State and is now selling the map in this city and vicinity

NEW MAGAZINES

THE DECEMBER WIDE AWAKE is out with a gay little operetta for the young folks, which they will welcome for their Christmas entertainments It is entitled "Prince Puss in Boots," and all the performers represent cats and are clad in the most bewitching of furry costumes The music which is given entire, is by Louis C Elson, the words by Mrs Nina Gray Clarke. A more dainty and laugh provoking entertainment could not well be desired The number opens with the best short story of the year, "Rob's Father," by Eleanor Putnam, with five spirited illustrations by Merrill, one of them a very fine full page engraving Another beautiful full page engraving accompanies "The Baby's Escapade" by A C and A T "How Alice Spent Twenty Five Dollars," by Jenny Burr, has a charming picture of "Alice" and is a good story for everybody "Hitty's Last School," will be enjoyed by all those interested in the early days of Boston The Serials "Polly Cologne," "Sharon," and "Having His Own Way" finish satisfactorily, and leave the reader wishing for three more as good stories The pretty rhyme of "Wee Willie Winkie" is developed into a piquant ballad by Miss Wilkins, and has six beautiful full page drawings by Miss L B Humphrey. Another very enjoyable poem is "Griselda In Pound," by Margaret J Preston The readings for the C Y F R U are well worth while the attention of young folks everywhere, and it is to be hoped that thousands of our young people will join the Reading Union before the Course for 1882 is completed

WIDE AWAKE permanently enlarged, is but $2 50 a year Ella Farman, Editor D Lothrop & Co, Publishers, Boston, Mass.

GUITEAU IN COURT.

Cross-Examination of the Assassin.

SOME HARD QUESTIONS ASKED BY JUDGE PORTER.

Prisoner Tries to Dodge Them,

BUT THE COURT ORDERS HIM TO ANSWER.

Wrong at the Facts.

He Also Wants Money.

The continuation of Wednesday's cross-examination will be found on the fourth page. [Ed. Whig.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. In the Guiteau trial before the opening of the Court, Judge Henry warned the audience against a repetition of any demonstration of applause or otherwise on their part, saying that he should expect you to observe perfect order to-day and avoid any laughter or applause.

On entering the witness box Guiteau said before resuming his evidence, to make a personal statement and addressed himself to the audience, saying: "Two days ago I sent out to the people for myself and on my own account, and Mr. Sherward Scoville publicly announced that it was without his authority. I invite my friends to send me money in the interest of the cause of justice in my defence. They can send $5, $10 $15, or a thousand. If they wish, they don't want to be known they can do it without a name to Mr. Scoville."

Judge Porter.

Judge Porter, rapid fire of interrogatories, asking from the prisoner in his several replies that physically he was a coward and always kept away from personal danger. Morally he was brave as a lion when he thought the Deity was back of him. Deity influenced him to remove the President, not he. The acts of God and Masonic attempting to kill him, or wrong and they ought to be punished as they can show that they were in the Deity.

The witness soon showed signs of impatience and excitability and striking his open hand upon the desk, he emphasized every sentence uttered. When pressed for answers he finally became obstinate and refused to Judge Porter, "I know you, and I know bigger men than you are. I have seen you shake your finger at a witness in New York, but you can't scare me," and shortly after, when asked if he believed in the commandments, he replied in the affirmative.

The Assassin Violent.

When he was asked by Judge Porter if he believed that the commandment "Thou shalt not kill" ought to read in his case "Thou shalt kill" he became exceedingly excited and refused to discuss that matter at all. There was no murder in his case and no killing. It was simply for the jury to determine whether his act in removing the President was inspired by the Deity or not. It was all nonsense to split hairs any longer over that word. It must be distinctly understood that the removal of President was the act of the Deity. The witness proved decidedly obstinate and after flatly contradicting the testimony of Gen Logan, Col. Reid and several other witnesses he positively refused to answer several questions, his invariable reply being "I decline to discuss that with you."

Driven From one Position to Another.

The witness seemed to be greatly annoyed at Judge Porter's habit of pointing a finger at him as he frequently did in a way of emphasizing his interrogatories and again broke out angrily "you need not point your bony finger at me, Judge Porter, I've seen you do that before but I can't scare me."

The witness was readily driven from one position to another till confronted with the evidence of his own witnesses when he could unhesitatingly pronounce their evidence false. Once he emphasized his contradiction by saying "anything that I swear to Judge Porter is true. You can put that down as a fixed fact."

Prisoner Ordered by the Court to Answer Questions.

The witness was closely questioned with regard to the different boarding houses at which he had lived while in Washington. It became very uneasy at the bad showing he was making by his own evidence for not dealing with his landladies. His uneasiness soon found expression and following I decline to go into this boarding house business. It has no bearing on this case. I suppose I owe $150 in Washington to these genteel ladies and some three or four other. I expect to pay them when I have the money," he continued angrily, "I pay my debts when I have money, and when I have not I can't pay them. That's all there is in it."

Judge Porter—"Perhaps the judge will think differently."

Guiteau turning with a smile and nod of satisfaction to Judge Cox, "Your Honor will see how irrelevant this talk is."

Judge Cox—"You were allowed great latitude, prisoner, in making your statement. You will reply to the questions."

Being pressed as to how he proposed to get funds which he said he was expecting to receive, witness replied, "I intended to draw it from some of my friends." He added, "I'll tell you Judge how. I need money. It may be of service to you when you want to borrow for yourself. Don't be mean sneak, but go right up to a man and ask him for what I want and if he has got it perhaps on the impulse of the moment he lets me have it."

The Pistol.

The witness was closely questioned about the purchase of the pistol and was asked why he bought one with an ivory handle instead of a plain one. He replied: "Because I thought it worth a dollar more."

Judge Porter—Did you not say that it would look better in the patent office?

The witness admitted that he might have believed or thought that the pistol would be some time placed in the State Department. Shortly afterward Guiteau became very indignant at Judge Porter's use of the word murder and shouted fiercely: You seem to delight in the use of the words kill and murder. There is no use of your whining in that way; the mere outward fact of how I removed the President has nothing whatever to do with this case. The prisoner with flushed cheeks and the air of a tiger at bay hurled his replies at Judge Porter for two hours, continually interrupting, however, the course of the questions to insist upon his position in relation to the Deity being thoroughly understood.

Mr. Porter—After you had bought the revolver being unused to fire arms, did you practice with it?

I went down to Wth street and fired it over the river.

Why did you go there?

Because the man in the store told me I would have to go outside the city limits to fire.

Did you take a box of cartridges with you?

I think so. I fired off ten cartridges.

What did you shoot at?

I shot at a sapling.

Why did you want to shoot at a sapling; you had Divine command for that?

I wanted (and here the witness hesitated for sometime), to fire if two or three times. I know nothing about the weapon; I expected to have to use it and wanted to familiarize myself with the outward use of the weapon.

You did not know how to fire a pistol but this was the work of the Deity?

(Apparently in a violent passion and gesticulating wildly) There is no use of your whining in this kind of way; you might as well rest. You are making entirely too much talk about the outward act of the Deity.

Porter—I say you have to go back and look at the motive—the motive was to kill.

Prisoner. (Interrupting excitedly)—To remove the President for the good of the American people. The outward fact which you desire is irrelevant to the matter.

You practiced repeatedly?

Never repeatedly; I fired it off twice on two different occasions just to get used to the outward act of handling it. I knew no more about it than a baby when I went to buy it; I looked at it and it kinder scared me. I went back after two or three days and bought it; the man in the store loaded it and I put it in my pocket.

Were you afraid it might go off?

I knew nothing about handling the weapon; I was as innocent as a baby. I do not know that I had any special fear, but I kept the point away from me pretty well.

When did you practice the first time?

I think I bought the revolver in the middle of the week and went down to 17th street Saturday evening, about 7 o'clock. The first time I fired it off it nearly knocked me over and scared me.

Did you hit the sapling?

I hit it the first time and not the other time.

Didn't he sapling go very nearly as Garfield went?

I don't know.

Have you had occasion to speak of it that he went down as that sapling?

I never used that expression in the world.

When did you try it again?

I went down a week or two after that and fired it again. When I had finished I put the pistol in my pocket and went back to my room, wiped it and laid it in my drawer and there it remained a couple of weeks.

Did you have it with you the day you intended to kill President Garfield, the 10th of June?

It was the 18th.

Did you have the pistol with you?

Yes.

During all this time were you on the lookout for Gen. Garfield's movements?

I was looking for him somewhat.

Did you go to the White House?

Never was in that neighborhood.

When did he go to Long Branch?

About the third week in June.

Among those scraps which you preserved were there anywaying when he would go to and return from Long Branch?

I think that was mentioned.

You kept that for the purpose of keeping an eye on his movements?

I was watching his movements.

When did you begin watching the President's movements?

About the time he and Mrs. Garfield went to Long Branch.

Did you not go to the White House grounds to see when he went out.

I did not go near the White House grounds, or if I did it was in the latter part of June. I used to sit in the park opposite the White House.

For the purpose of observing him and watching your chance?

I wanted to execute the Divine will and to obviate all this loose talk I will state I would have removed the President any place from the middle of June until I shot him if I had had an opportunity. At any time I would have executed the Divine will from the middle of June until the time I actually did shoot him.

I thought your mind was clear from the first of June?

It was but I was not actually ready to do the act until the middle of June.

And had not practiced with your pistol?

That is not the point. What do you want to put that in for? I had a good deal to do until the middle of June. I went to work to revise my book (Truth); I knew there would be some demand for that. I also did several other matters. I was watching for opportunity during those two weeks and at any time I should have executed the Divine will; so that disposes of all that loose talk about the outward act. The entire responsibility of this thing is on the Deity. It is His act and He can take care of it. He has taken care of it thus far and He will continue to take care of it.

Then what was the necessity that you should be a witness in the case?

The Deity uses certain men to serve Him. He is using this honorable Court, and this jury, and these policemen, and these troops to serve Him and protect me. I don't want any more talk on this subject. If you go on to other subjects I will discuss them.

After some further questioning Judge Porter asked: If Gen. Garfield had sent your name to the Senate for the Paris Consulship you would have laid in wait and murdered him?

I would not have accepted the office.

Did you have any malice—(interrupting) I repudiate you for making that allusion. You know as well as I that I never had any malice. He was my personal and political friend. The witness then explained that his personal friendship with President Garfield consisted in speaking with him once, and his political friendship in belonging to the same political party. He did not consider it necessary to be a man's bedfellow to be his friend. (Dramatically and modulating his tone at the close of the question), and you had no ill will? (Imitating and mockingly) I had no ill will against him.

And no ill will against your sister when you raised an axe against her?

I never raised an axe at her.

You had no ill will against your brother when you struck him?

I never struck him.

You think Gen. Garfield was to blame in appointing Mr. Blaine Secretary of State?

I think most decidedly it was a very unwise thing. I say it was an open insult to Grant and Conkling for Gen. Garfield to appoint their worst enemy. I think that caused all the storm (with a bang on the railing). It made it so bitter for Grant and Conkling and Arthur that they would not go to the White House. I say that (with more banging of his fist on the railing) to the American people and to the jury and the Court.

Is this what you said in your note to Mr. Blaine? I am very glad, personally, that the President selected you for his premier.

I said that.

Was that true?

It was true at the time.

You were glad?

I was glad; (after a pause) that needs a modification, however.

What modification does it need?

The modification is that at that time Gen. Garfield had not insulted Grant and Conkling by Robertson's appointment and Merritt's withdrawal.

Then you were a Blaine man until that time?

Under circumstances I was. I thought Blaine a good fellow and I was glad to see him promoted. I thought and so did other stalwarts that Garfield was disposed to do the fair thing by the stalwarts, but after he appointed Blaine and got under Blaine's influence, he studied wickedly to slaughter Grant and Conkling and to pave the way for Garfield's nomination in 1884.

His Shrewdness

in detecting and anticipating any point which might be made against him, was a marked feature of the investigation. Guiteau was permitted to indulge his passion for talking. Upon the pending political situation at the time of the shooting, until speaking of the President's ingratitude to Grant and Conkling, he was led by Judge Porter to admit that Ingratitude is the Basest of Crimes.

Judge Porter—Stop there! What would you have thought of your act in killing the President had he given you the Paris consulship instead of having refused it?

Guiteau had previously said that Garfield was his "warm personal and political friend;" that no personal motives whatever were involved in the act and fearing evidently that some trap was being set for him he hesitated and then with great emphasis said: "I want to just fasten you gold right here. I would not have taken the Paris consulship after the first of June if I had been appointed to it, and the President and Secretary Blaine had both beseeched me on their knees to take it. I had at that time resolved to remove the President for the good of the American people. At 12 recess was taken for one hour.

After Recess.

Judge Porter resumed the cross-examination of Guiteau at a quarter past one and began with the question, Did you mean to support Mr. Blaine for the next President?

Guiteau replied, I never gave the matter much attention. The witness had some such idea that he would assist Mr. Blaine if he got the Paris Consulship, but as he (Blaine) had been twice slaughtered by the Convention for his railway record, he did not think he would ever be nominated. The witness felt a great interest in Garfield at the time of his election. "You tickle me and I will tickle you" is the theory and practice of politics. The witness wanted it understood that his feelings were entirely different previous to the 30th of May from what they were at the time when he resolved to remove the President.

PHILADELPHIA.

FRAUDS IN THE COLLECTION OF TAXES.

INVESTIGATING THE RECORDS.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1. In the report made to-day to the City Council by John Hunter, Receiver of Taxes, it is said, although the examination of the books of his department is not much more than commenced, and although the examination has been retarded by the acting collector of delinquent taxes, Wm. J. Donohugh, so much has been developed as to show that the city has been, largely, defrauded. He cannot at this time estimate the amount due the city, but perhaps some of it may be recovered. The frauds are in the remission of penalties, to the violation of the ordinance of the city, presentation of bills to tax-payers for an amount in excess of the actual assessment; presentation of bills and collection of taxes on property actually exempt, fraud by raising the allowance of the Board of Revision. In one ward alone the Board of Revision was allowed in the aggregate on assessments over $470,000 and this allowance

Was Raised to Over $600,000.

The tax payers were credited with proper allowances, but false allowances were deducted from the returns made to the City Treasurer. In the same year the balances were forced, moneys were also retained from the City Treasury for months and years after its payment and large amounts of tax on personal property were paid by the owners but never paid into the City Treasury. Other kinds of frauds have been discovered, but the Receiver of Taxes had not yet been able to examine them carefully. Such for instance as the drawing of warrants for much larger amounts than the sum due for the work performed, the signing of fraudulent names to the warrants, making out the bills of tax payers without allowing the proper discount or charging an excess of penalty.

In Each Case Pocketing the Over Charge.

The records of the Department contain no entry of the payments of the money at interest of the Girard Life Insurance and Trust Company from 1872 to 1876. During the year 1874 in one ward (9) the allowances made of money at interest amounted to $900,318.63, of this sum but $170,416 05 were allowed by the Board of Revision, and the balance, $129,000, was increased by the clerks raising the figures certified to by the Board of Revision of Taxes. In order to accomplish the fraudulent entries there must have been collusion between the tax receivers and Controllers of the departments and a system adopted by which the Treasury was annually robbed of thousands of dollars. False allowances appeared through from the entry of the payment of taxes to the taking off of the balance sheet. The Controller at the time referred to was Samuel P. Hancock, while the tax receiver was Thomas J. Smith.

FROM WASHINGTON.

GENERAL NEWS.

Naval Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. The annual report of the Secretary of the Navy was made public to-day. Secretary Hunt at the out set calls the attention of Congress to the neglected condition of the Navy and says that unless some action be had in its behalf it must soon dwindle to insignificance. He generally endorses the recommendations submitted by his subordinates. Referring to the report of the Naval Advisory Board, he recommends that the views of a majority of the Board are entitled to the approbation of Congress. Secretary Hunt estimates that $20,013,710 will be needed to defray the expenses of the Department for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1883.

Railroad News.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1. The Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company to-day failed to meet the interest on the bonds of the Colebrookdale Railroad Company falling due to-day. It is stated, however, that the interest, which has been sealed by the receivers from six to four per cent., will be paid the 6th instant.

THE PACIFIC BANK.

Examining the Assets—The Question of Continuing to be Decided by Saturday.

BOSTON, Dec. 1. The examination into the assets of the Pacific Bank to sift out the worthless, or doubtful securities is in progress with a prospect of being completed to-day. A meeting of the stockholders will be held to-morrow afternoon and a statement of the examining committee will then be presented. Bank Examiner Needham has stated that he shall give his consent to resumption only upon the guarantee that $1,500,000 of new capital shall be paid in. Weeks has asked to be allowed to settle for $250,000, but this request was refused and he will be required to pay in the full $500,000 demanded. Needham has given the Directors and stockholders until Saturday night to determine what course they will pursue relative to the future.

THE IRISH CONVENTION

"No Rent" System.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31. The Irish Convention reassembled this forenoon and there was a meagre attendance. The Committee on Credentials reported showing 733 delegates. The following was read and received with tremendous applause:

PARIS, Nov. 30.

"To the President of the Irish National Convention:

"I just learned from a confidential agent in Ireland that a careful estimate has been prepared and it is now ascertained that tenants on 5000 properties representing a rental of $20,000,000 per year have refused rent in compliance with the League manifesto."

THE STATE FAIR

To be Located at Lewiston.

LEWISTON, Dec. 1. The Maine State Agricultural Society, this evening at an adjourned meeting, unanimously passed the following order:

The President of the Maine State Agricultural Society is hereby instructed to purchase for the Society the Lewiston Trotting Park grounds and all the appurtenances belonging thereto, provided a perfect title to the same can be obtained for the sum of five thousand dollars; and he is authorized to draw his warrant upon the Treasurer of this Society for the payment of said sum.

The above was unanimously recommended by the special committee on location.

Amount Reduced.

BELFAST, Dec. 1. In the case of the Masonic Temple Association appellants from the assessment of fifteen hundred dollars, abatements for the alteration of High street, a Sheriff's Jury presided over by Judge Whitman, of Augusta, reduced the amount to one thousand dollars.

Supt. Lincoln, of the Bucksport & Bangor Railroad, reports business over that road much better than last year.

Dr. W. H. Brown, of this city, is in Boston, where he will remain a few days with his son-in-law, John L. Stoddard, Esq.

Mr. Edmund Seammon, of Greenville, died Wednesday evening from the effects of the paralytic shock received last Friday.

We have received from Bank Examiner Richards a report showing the condition of the savings banks of the State as they stood on the 7th day of November.

The new school house in the Central District Brewer, will be dedicated this afternoon, with appropriate exercises, commencing at half-past two.

Young Howard, whose arm was so terribly crushed in a laundry a few days ago, passed through Wednesday night quite comfortably. The prospects of saving his arm are now quite good.

Miss Porat, of New York, the blind lady, whose expertness as a sewing machine operator is something wonderful, will be present during the Grand Army Fair in this city and exhibit her skill.

A warm southeasterly rain-storm set in yesterday forenoon, and for hours it fell most copiously. Toward night the severity of the storm had somewhat abated, but the day was dismally dark throughout.

Miss Mary E. Costello, a teacher, at the West Side Grammar School, met with a severe and painful accident Wednesday. She had attempted to split some kindling when a billet of wood hit her in the eye, inflicting a dangerous wound.

A correspondent writes from Monson that Solomon F. Cushman, of Massachusetts, a wealthy woolen manufacturer, has purchased the Eveleth Grove lot, near Monson village, where he intends to erect a summer residence the coming season. It is a beautiful situation.

LOSS OF BARK ADA WISWELL. A despatch received in this city yesterday from New York, says that the bark Ada Wiswell was wrecked at Montevideo bar and is a total loss. All hands were saved. The bark was built at Machias in 1874; was 567 tons burden, and was commanded by Capt. Lyman Wiswell, formerly of this city.

FAIR AT CITY HALL. The ladies of the First M. E. church opened their Fair at City Hall yesterday afternoon. The hall was made to present an attractive appearance and the supper tables were temptingly arrayed, but the attendance was very small, owing to the pouring rain. In the evening the numbers increased and should the weather be pleasant to-day, the Fair will doubtless be well patronized.

ELECTION OF G. A. R. OFFICERS. At a regular meeting of B. H. Beale Post 12, G. A. R., held last evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: C. Y. Crossman, P. C.; W. Z. Clayton, S. V. C.; S. H. Downs, J. V. C.; George M. Fletcher, Q. M.; H. F. Hanson, M. D., Surg.; E. B. Bates, Chap.; J. F. Maloney, O. of D.; J. C. Hone, O. of G. A. B. Farnham, Chas. E. Getchell, F., H. Gorham and A. C. Hamlin were chosen as Trustees.

The Directors of the Bangor Opera House have voted to place a trust mortgage of $20,000 on the property, and have named Dr. T. U. Coe, as trustee for the bondholders. This is under the plan adopted by the stockholders meeting, which will give to each stockholder the right to take one $80 bond for each share of stock; these bonds to bear six per cent interest. Each stockholder will have the right, for ten days, to subscribe for his proportion of the bonds at the office of the treasurer, I. H. Merrill.

INDIAN RELICS. The Ellsworth American says the town of Brooklin is rich in antiquity. The red man must have made that peninsula a home for centuries. Indian relics are found all along its southern shore. The land, in some places, has a depth of five or six feet of clamshells. Arrow heads, stone axes, bones of animals, clay beads and skulls of human beings have been unearthed by the plow. A few years ago, the skull of an Indian was found of immense size. The teeth were all double and the head of Webster would have been dwarfed beside it.

MAINE CENTRAL RAILROAD. The winter arrangement on this road takes effect Monday next. The day express train will leave this city at 7.15 A. M.; the night train, with Pullman sleeping cars will leave at 7.45 P. M.; an accommodation train for Waterville will leave at 6 00 A. M.; a mixed train leaves for Waterville at 1.00 P. M. The day train arrives in this city at 6.35 P. M.; the night train arrives at 6.45 A. M.

I. O. G. T. "Brunswick" writes: The Good Templar organization seems to be on the increase in Maine. There are now over three hundred lodges in the State. M. J. Dow, of Brooks, has instituted twenty-eight lodges since the October session, 1880; J. H. Hamilton, of Mattawamkeag, nearly as many, and several have been instituted by other parties. The interest in the old lodges in most parts of the State is good, and active work will be done in the cause of temperance the coming winter. It must also be admitted that the work is needed.

A CHILD SCALDED TO DEATH. A little four-years old daughter of Charles Cleaves, of Prentiss, died last Monday from the effects of a terrible scalding received the Saturday previous. The mother had been washing, and having occasion to go out of the room, left a pail of boiling-hot water standing on the floor. The little girl, who was thus left alone, while at play fell backwards into it and was so severely scalded that she died on the Monday following, as above stated. The sufferings of the little one are described as being simply awful.

THE NEW STAGE SCREENS. The unfortunate person who finds himself at an entertainment behind one or several of the prevalent broad-brimmed hats, will have no use for opera glasses and none for his eyes after they have sufficiently feasted on the wonderful expanse of fuzzy felt and feathers which furnishes a perpetual drop-curtain between him and the stage. It is suggested that unfortunate masculinity might get even by sitting with open umbrellas over their heads, but as the recent rate of enlargement of the feminine head gear the umbrellas would soon be nowhere.

CONFLAGRATION AT WEST WATERVILLE. The scythe and axe shops of the Hubbard & Blake Manufacturing Company were destroyed by fire Wednesday night. An alarm was sounded in Waterville about nine o'clock and a special train took an engine to the scene of the conflagration but little could be done to save the buildings then on fire. Part of the hammer shop, however, was saved, as was also the office and storehouse. The loss is estimated at from $25,000 to $30,000, including about $12,000 worth of finished stock. Insured for $10,000. The cause of the fire is not yet known.

AID SOLICITED FOR A COLORED CHURCH IN THE SOUTH. A place of worship for colored people is being built at Port Royal, S. C., having been erected by Benjamin Burr, of that place. Mr. Burr, who was formerly a resident in this section, has written a letter to B. A. Burr, Esq., one of the proprietors of this paper, asking for contributions in aid of the work. He writes that a church for the benefit of the colored people is very much needed there, and says that they have done what they could to help the undertaking along. All persons desiring to contribute to the above object may leave their donations with B. A. Burr, Esq., who will promptly forward them.

LOST HER POCKET-BOOK. Wednesday noon, Mrs. J. Allen, of Cranburn, came to this city principally for the purpose of paying a debt of $75. The lady had in her possession about $80, which she carried in a wallet in her dress pocket. She had just purchased a pair of shoes at a store on Main street and had paid for them, when, on reaching the sidewalk after leaving the store, she discovered that her dress was torn across the pocket and that her money was gone. The husband, who is in ill-health, was obliged to return home, leaving his wife in the city to endeavor to recover her loss. Thus far she has been unsuccessful; but her misfortune has excited the compassion of some of our citizens and a subscription paper has been started. Nearly $50 had been subscribed yesterday afternoon, and it is probable the full amount of her loss will be raised. Mrs. Allen, who seems to be a very worthy woman, says that they could have survived the loss though it would have been a very severe one to them. She did not, however, expect that a subscription would be raised in her behalf, and the generosity of our citizens appeared to deeply affect her.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Vokes.

Notwithstanding the muddy condition of the streets and the generally dismal state of the weather, the Vokes Family were received by a very large audience last evening at Norombega Hall. The entertainment opened with "Cousin Joe," a comedy with which all theatre-goers are familiar. Miss Victoria Vokes as "Margery" and Fred Vokes as "Cousin Joe" kept the house in an uproar. The "Belles of the Kitchen" followed. This is simply a comical extravaganza, in which the artiste already named exhibit great versatility in their grotesque characters, their singing and dancing winning much applause. The entertainment as a whole was light and frolicsome and was received with shouts of laughter. The costumes were rich and elegant.

G. A. R. FAIR.

Additional Contributions.

The following additional contributions to the G. A. R. Fair were received yesterday:

Domestic Sewing Machine Co., Dwelley & Co., agents, one sewing machine.

Miss Porat, of New York, who is totally blind and said to be wonderfully expert, will be present and exhibit her skill as an operator.

Geo. W. Harriman, nice spice chest.

J. S. Ricker & Co., beautiful statuette of President Garfield.

J. W. Clapp (confectioner, Kenduskeag Bridge) guess cake.

Bacon, Robinson & Co., one ton of coal.

AN EVENT IN AROOSTOOK.

A Railroad Opened to Presque Isle.

We learn by a private despatch that the first train on the New Brunswick Railway was run into Presque Isle station Wednesday evening.

LITTLE CORINNE.

Seeking to put a Stop to the Little Actress' Stage Career.

[From the New York Tribune, Nov. 30th.]

An officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children yesterday took before Judge Donohue, in the Supreme Court Chambers, a little girl of about nine years called Corinne, who is alleged to have been "unlawfully exhibited, used and employed in the vocation, service and purpose of dancing, singing and acting at divers theatres in this State, and very recently in the city of Albany." The petition on which the order of arrest was based sets forth that Corinne has been thus exhibited by Jennie Kimball, otherwise called Jennie Flaherty, who is not the lawful guardian of the child, nor is it person to be entrusted with her education or control. It was the intention of Jennie Kimball to exhibit Corinne at the Metropolitan Casino. Such exhibitions, the petition says, are accompanied by singing and dancing, require the committal to memory of large portions of plays, and are greatly detrimental to the child. Corinne's parents are both dead.

Elbridge T. Gerry appeared for the society and asked that an order should be made according the custody of Corinne to the society until the court decided what disposition should finally be made in regard to her future care and custody. George L. Rives, on the part of Mrs. Flaherty, opposed Mr. Gerry's motion, and declared that it would be literally committing Corinne to prison.

The return to the petition, sworn to by Mrs. Flaherty and her husband, Thomas Flaherty, denies every material statement in the petition of the society, and alleges that Corinne was given to Mrs. Flaherty by her mother, who is still living, and who is perfectly satisfied with the care and education which Corinne receives. The exhibitions referred to in the petition, it is stated, are not accompanied by dancing, and the committal to memory of parts of operas imposed no task upon the child, but a source of pleasure to her. Corinne was not deprived of advantages of proper education; on the contrary, the advantages which she enjoyed were far better than those of the great majority of children. She had regular lessons every day, her health was excellent, and she went out walking every pleasant day with her maid. She also had a carriage and ponies of her own, which she drove constantly. Mr. Rives also produced a copy of a license permitting Corinne to perform in Boston, and the certificate of the physician who had attended her from birth, in which her health is said to be perfect.

Justice Donohue said that it was the usual course in such cases to commit the child to the custody of the society until a final determination in the case had been reached, and that he could find no authority for departing from the usual course. Mr. Rives then asked Justice Donohue to allow either the foster-mother or the maid to accompany the child. It was finally decided that the maid should go with Corinne. The examination of witnesses was then begun. Corinne herself was first called. She was richly and tastefully dressed in a mauve velvet dress, with silk stockings to match. She has dark hair and eyes and a fresh olive complexion. She said her name was Corinne Kimball, and that she would be ten years at Christmas. She did not know how long she had known Mrs. Flaherty (whom she called mamma), but it was a very long time. She played the part of Little Buttercup in Boston when she was about six years old. Her mamma taught her the part. She played every night, and sometimes in the afternoon besides. She afterwards played the parts of Cinderella, Olivette and Marjolette, in each of which she sang three or four songs. She had travelled from Halifax to Nebraska. Her carriage and ponies were always taken along on her trips about the country. She had a coachman and a driver. When she sang she frequently received applause, and had been called out as often as four times when she sang in "Pinafore." She enjoyed singing and appearing in public performances.

The examination will be continued to-day. Corinne wept bitterly at the prospect of being removed from her foster-mother to the pure influences of the society, and refused to be comforted, although Mrs. Flaherty seemed to make every effort to console her.

SPIRITED AWAY.

(A New York despatch, dated Nov. 30th, says:

Examination in the case of Corinne, the child actress, who was committed on Tuesday by Justice Donohue to the custody of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, pending a proceeding begun by that Society to have her removed from the custody of her foster mother, Jennie Flaherty, was not continued to-day because of the absence of the child. When the examination was adjourned on Tuesday Mrs. Flaherty obtained from the President of the Society permission to take Corinne to her home in order to make some necessary changes in her dress before she was taken to the society's buildings. An officer went with Mrs. Flaherty and Corinne to the Abbottsford, No. 660 Sixth avenue. The party went up to a room in which there were six or seven men and women. There was an alcove in the room to which Corinne retired, and the maid began to undress her. Mrs. Flaherty suggested to the officer that it would be more proper if he would allow her to take Corinne into an adjoining room. Consent was given and Corinne disappeared. Mrs. Flaherty went back and forth several times, and the last time she told the officer that Corinne had been carried off by a strange man. The officer then took Mrs. Flaherty to the office of the Society, and after consultation with the President took her to a police station, where she spent the night. She was taken to-day before Justice Donohue, in the Supreme Court Chambers, and said that she had no statement to make concerning the disappearance of Corinne. She said that she was 33 years of age and had lived in Boston for the last fourteen years.

The counsel for the Society asked the court to commit Mrs. Flaherty to await the action of the Grand Jury, without bail. The counsel for Mrs. Flaherty considered this proposition monstrous. The Judge refused to admit the prisoner to bail until to-morrow, when a formal warrant for her commitment will be made out.

GUITEAU IN COURT.

ONE EXAMINATION OF THE ASSASSIN.

Below we give a continuation of Wednesday's cross-examination of Guiteau which is unfinished in yesterday's issue:

Were you inspired to remove him by murder?

I was inspired to execute the Divine will by murder, so called.

You did not succeed in executing the Divine will?

I think the doctors finished the work.

The Deity tried, and you tried, and you failed, but the doctors succeeded?

The Deity confirmed my act by letting President down so gently as he did.

Do you think it was letting him down only to let him suffer that torture over which you profess to feel so much solicitude during those long months?

The whole matter was in the hands of the Deity and (impatiently) I do not want to discuss it any further. I appreciate the act of the President's long sickness as much as any person in the world, but that is a very narrow view to take of the matter.

What time did Senator Conkling resign? About the 15th of May, I should judge.

I think that was Monday and you had no inspiration on that day?

No, sir.

Did you any inspiration on Tuesday?

No, sir.

On Wednesday night you went to bed at eight o'clock, and then came the inspiration?

I came between eight and nine o'clock.

Did you believe it the will of God you should murder the President?

I believed that it was His will that he should be removed, and I was the appointed agent to do it.

Did he give you a commission in writing?

No, sir.

Did he give it in an audible tone of voice?

He gave it me by his pressure on me.

The give it to you audibly?

Sir.

He did not come to you as a vision in the night?

I do not get any inspiration that way. It occurred to you as you were lying on your bed, if President Garfield were dead would solve the whole difficulty?

Yes.

Did it occur to you that you were the man to kill him?

Not at that time, my mind was unsettled.

Who did you think then was the man to do him?

I had no thought on the subject. The first impression came on my mind that if President were removed everything would be well.

Did you contemplate his removal otherwise than be murder?

No, sir. (Petulantly.) I do not like the word murder.

Mr. Porter—I know you do not like the word "murder," it is a hard word, but it is here.

The prisoner—I do not recollect the point in that matter. (Excitedly.) If I had shot the President of the United States on my own personal account, no punishment would be too severe, nor too quick for me, but acting as the agent of the Deity, that puts an entirely different complexion on the act, and that is what I want to put to the Court and jury. To the passing counsel I say that the removal of President was an act of necessity from the situation and for the good of the American people. That is the idea I want you to entertain, and not to settle down on the cold-blooded idea of murder, because I never had the first conception of murder in the matter.

Do you feel under a great obligation to the American people?

I think the American people may some time consider themselves under great obligations to me.

Porter—My question was whether you under a great obligation to them?

The prisoner—I do not know why I should be.

Were you under great obligations to the Republican party?

Not that I know of.

Did the Republican party ever give you any office?

I never held any kind of a political office in my life, and never desired one?

I had some thought about the Paris Consulship, that is the only office I ever had the slightest thought about.

That was the one that resulted in the inspiration of the murder?

No, sir, my getting it, or not getting it, never had the slightest effect on my mind in attempting to remove the President—it was purely a political necessity. If a political necessity had not existed the President would not have been removed by me.

You never desired the removal of Mr. Blaine?

No, sir.

And never suggested it to anybody?

No, sir.

Porter—Allow me to read to you your letter written on the 23d of May, four days, according to your account, after you made your mind to remove the President. This will refresh your recollection as to whether you desired at that time to remove Mr. Blaine also.

The prisoner—I had never the slightest thought of removing Mr. Blaine. I had not made up my mind to remove the President on May 23d, not until the first of June. For two weeks after I got the conception I was shaking it off. My natural feelings were all against it, but the pressure continued pressing me and pressing me up at the end of two weeks, about the first of June I had made up my mind to the inspiration of the act, and me to the necessity for it.

Porter—That reminds me of another very deliberate utterance of yours made on the 16th of June, the day on which you intended to murder the President.

The prisoner—I intended to remove him under the pressure; never to murder him.

On the 16th of June, in an address to the American people, which you intended should be found on your person after you shot him, you said: "I announced the idea of removing the President, four weeks ago. Was that a lie?

I conceived it, but my mind was not fully settled on it. There is a difference between conceiving a thing and actually fixing it in your mind. You may conceive the idea of going to Europe in a month, and yet you may not go; that is no point at all.

I will proceed with your address. You "I conceived the idea myself."

The prisoner—That is correct.

Porter—Why did you conceal it? Why you keep it to yourself?

Why should I go and tell it? That is no use.

Had you made up your mind whether or not it would be murder?

I had not made up my mind to do the act until about the 1st of June. I was reading it with all my might and strength, and prayed that if wrong the Deity would stop me by his providence. Please take notice.

I am return to the subject of Mr. Blaine. You say in your letter to the President "Mr. Blaine is a wicked man. You ought to demand his immediate resignation, or you and the Republican party will come to grief."

Political grief, not physical grief. Every intelligent man will see I meant political grief.

Was that after that Wednesday night when you conceived the idea of removing President?

That was a mere flash across my mind which did not take shape or form for over two weeks. All that time I was realizing the idea.

When there was no inspiration in May?

No, it was a mere flash, an embryo intention, a mere impression which came into my mind that possibly it would have to be done. My mind was fully made up about June 1st.

You say about the first of June; was it the first of June?

I say in about two weeks from the 16th of May. During that time I was realizing with all my might, all my strength and in my prayers. At the end of that time my mind was fully fixed in regard to the necessity and divinity of the act.

Then the question was not whether you could obey the inspiration, but whether it was an actual necessity?

I was finding out during those two weeks whether it was God's will or not. At the end of two weeks I made up my mind. It was His will and it was for the best interest of the American people. That is the way I got inspiration.

Your making up your mind was not His act?

Yes, it was.

While you were praying and professing to be in doubt, were you in doubt?

For two weeks I was in doubt, but I never have had any doubt since that time.

What occasioned the doubt?

Because I wanted to know whether it was the Deity that inspired me. I kept praying that the Deity should not make any mistake about it.

You regarded it as murder, then?

So called, yes. It was not murder for all my natural feelings were against it.

Were you aware it was against human law?

I felt that the Deity would take care of me. I never entertained the idea of murder in the whole matter. I never had any conception of the matter as a murder. My mind is perfectly blank on that subject and has been.

Why were your natural feelings against murder?

I cannot make myself any better understood than I have done.

At this portion of the cross-examination which the prisoner bore with considerable self possession, although he occasionally got flurried and excited, the Court at three o'clock adjourned.

STARCH FROM "SWEET MASH"

A BRIEF HISTORY OF LITIGATION INVOLVING $5,000,000.

A Buffalo despatch says: "The decision of Judge Wallace, of the United States District Court, is being awaited with interest in reference to the questions involved in a suit for infringement of patents used in extracting starch from corn by the Buffalo Grape-sugar Company, brought against C. J. Hamlin, originally by Thomas A. Jebb, and transferred to the New York Grape-sugar Company, who then instituted an additional action against the American Grape sugar Company. The amount of money involved is $5,000,000. In 1876 G. S. Graves, who is in the employ of the Gilbert starch-works of this city, called upon Mr. Hamlin, and informed him that he held a secret which would be of great value. The interview resulted in Graves being engaged at a yearly salary of $2,500 and 10 per cent. of the profits arising from goods manufactured by the new process. Mr. Hamlin authorized Horace Williams, then a partner with Mr. Hamlin in the grape-sugar works, to enter into a contract with Mr. Graves upon the conditions specified. The new process for making starch and separating the starch from the other portions of the grain used in the manufacture of glucose, worked a radical change in the and in profits over the old process of "sour mash, which required many days to perfect" the fermentation necessary to prepare the corn for use, while the "sweet mash" of the new process accomplished the same purpose in 40 days, and gave an additional profit of 30 cents on each bushel of corn so manufactured into starch or glucose. The plaintiff corporation claims to own the separate patents used in the manufacture of grape-sugar, glucose, and starch, all of which patents the plaintiff claims the American Grape-sugar Company, controlled by the Messrs. Hamlin, have infringed upon for a long number of years, and are doing so at the present time. Judge Wallace has been asked to grant an injunction restraining the defendants from continuing to manufacture goods by this new process, until such time as the rights to the patents by the New York Grape-sugar Company are fully established or denied by a court of equity having jurisdiction over the question at issue.

The question affecting the right to these patents was heard before a number of Judges as Referees, who met a few months ago in New York city. Among others examined was C. J. Hamlin, who testified that the profits on each bushel of corn manufactured by the new process, or sweet mash, exceeded the profit by the old, or sour mash process for 30 cents. This fact being sworn to by Mr. Hamlin, was taken as a basis in forming the decision of the arbitrators, and their verdict was that the American Grape-sugar Company should pay a royalty to the defendant of 25 cents on every bushel of corn so manufactured or which shall be manufactured, so long as the patent or patents are in legal and binding force. It is computed that the American Grape sugar Company have used grain sufficient for the royalty of 25 cents on each bushel to amount to $5,000,000, which is the amount of the claim sued for the plaintiff. Mr. Hamlin claims that he has sued the patents owned by the New York concern since 1876, and was in total ignorance of the fact that the new process for making starch was covered by patents. The cases it is said, will be brought to trial early in January, and that they will be tried on their merits will be fully understood by the array of legal talent engaged. The interests of the plaintiffs are in the hands of Messrs. Dickerson & Dickerson of New York, the Hon. Roscoe Conkling, of Utica, Messrs. Lewis & Rice, and Messrs. Williams & Bonner, of Buffalo. The defendants are represented by Messrs. Rogers, Locke & Wheeler, of Buffalo; Messrs. George B. Selden & Co., of Rochester, Messrs. Thurston & Co. of Providence, and Messrs. George B. Harding & Co., of Philadelphia."

DR. C. W. BENSON, of Baltimore, Md., Inventor and proprietor of the celebrated Celery and Chamomile Pills. These pills are prepared expressly to cure Sick Headache, Nervous Headache, Neuralgia, Nervousness, Paralysis, Sleeplessness and Dyspepsia, and will cure any case, no matter how obstinate, if properly used. They are not a cathartic, but only for these special diseases. They contain no opium, morphine or quinine, and are not a purgative but regulate the bowels and cure constipation by curing or removing the cause of it. They have a cleansing effect upon the skin and a lovely quieting effect upon the nervous system, simply by feeding its tonic required, namely, fats, in some cases carrying absorbents. They make or create nerve matter and give power, for that purpose to the nerves and in that way increase mental power, endurance and brilliancy of mind. Nobody that has a nervous system should neglect to take them two or three months in each year, for nerve food, if for no other purpose.

No. 1 by all druggists. Price 50 cents a box. Dec 26, 1880 North Eutaw St Baltimore, Md. By mail, two boxes for $1, or six boxes for $2.50, to any address.

CARRIERS.

Mail matter collected from letter carriers will be delivered at the number. People should inform the correspondents of advertisements have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their cabins at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number known, and they will be delivered as soon as the same is put on at the Office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip promptly, the extremities of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening, reason for important mails.

Holidays the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 9 to 10 A. M., and from 4 to 5 P. M. Sundays from 9 to 10 A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carrier department should be reported to the Office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and residence of the sender in the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, stamps of which may be seen at the Office for sale. Envelopes with or without the printing can be had at the Office.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if not claimed within thirty days, or less, will be complied with, the writer's name, post office and street, if required, on the envelope, on the face of the letter will be complied with.

The public are earnestly recommended to procure their stamped envelopes with printed return business, as the delivery of letters to the writer is rendered difficult if not impossible to the person addressed, and returned to the writer free of charge.

Persons having envelopes of those sizes that are not stamped can have them stamped at the Office by paying the amount of the stamps required, and the envelopes will be returned to them.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The amount of postage required on letters or packages must be prepaid by stamps affixed. Stamped envelopes are sold in sheets at the Office at the rate of $2.00 per hundred.

An Interesting Account!

Stone in the Bladder Expelled by Using Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.

Mr. S. W. Hicks, of Dutchess Valley, Dutchess Co., N. Y., the son of Mr. B. Hicks whose name may have appeared in a Journal in connection with an article similar to the one, like his father, afflicted with Stone in the Bladder, only that his case was more serious than his father's. On the appearance of the Circular, he decided to write to Dr. David Kennedy of Rondout, N. Y., who, he had, we believe, had worked successfully in the case of his father. Mr. Hicks, who had been assured by the local physicians that they could do nothing for him, tried Favorite Remedy as a venture. After two weeks use of it he passed a piece of an inch long and of the thickness of a pipe stem. Since then he has had no symptoms of the stone. The trouble Mr. Hicks is a sick man healed. What greater benefit could have been expected? What greater benefit could medical science confer? The fund was gained, that is surely enough. Dr. Kennedy can trust the public to, by a reputation which he cannot afford to forfeit or imperil, that the Favorite Remedy does invigorate the Blood, cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder complaints, as well as all those diseases and weaknesses peculiar to females. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for sale by all druggists.
